The Junior Eurovision Song Contest 2022 is now history. Yerevan, the capital of Armenia, hosted the 20th edition of the popular children's contest with great success. The contest returned to the Caucasus after the victory of Maléna and her "Qami Qami" in Paris 2021.

On Sunday, 11 December from 16:00 CET, the Karen Demirchyan Complex hosted the show which was presented by Iveta Mukuchyan, Garik Papoyan and Karina Ignatyan.

The show lasted about 2 hours and 30 minutes and the 16 contestant artists shone on the impressive stage of the festival. In addition, Armenian artists Maléna, winner of Junior Eurovision 2021, and Rosa Linn, the country's representative at the Eurovision Song Contest 2022, were part of a show at the highest level. There was also time to look back on the 19 previous songs in an emotional number that retraced the great and successful history of the contest

In the end, Lissandro with his song "Oh Maman!" managed to win the coveted crystal microphone thanks to 203 points from the national juries and the viewers through online voting.

VIEWING FIGURES ACROSS EUROPE

The 20th edition of Junior Eurovision has been broadcast live in 17 countries, including all participants and Germany, which despite not participating, has decided to broadcast the competition on its children's channel KiKa.
